Support. Officials asked the city to pray for Officer Edward Davies, 41, who remained in critical condition on Aug. 14.

Officer Edward Davies, 41, remained hospitalized with life-threatening injuries Wednesday, Aug. 14, after he was shot the day before by a suspect who fled a traffic stop.

Colleagues and supporters waged a social media vigil in the six-year veteran's honor, with the hashtag #StandWithDavies trending locally on Twitter. "He stood with us," Sgt. Eric Gripp wrote. "Now stand with him!"

In the same vein, the Philadelphia Police Department organized a blood drive in Davies' honor from 7 a.m. to 5 p.m. Aug. 15 and noon to 5 p.m. Aug. 16. Officers can visit Temple University Hospital's Administrative Services Building, while the general public is encouraged to visit the Red Cross at 7th and Spring Garden streets or at 1401 Rhawn St.

PHILADELPHIA POLICE DEPARTMENT

Davies, who is married with four children, has undergone several surgeries.

Police said on Aug. 14 he remained in extremely critical condition. His alleged shooter, Eric Torres, was jailed on attempted murder charges.

"The members of the Philadelphia Police Department are extremely appreciative of everyone's kind words during this difficult time," the Police Department said in a statement. "Please continue to keep Officer Davies, his family and his police family in your thoughts and prayers."

Firefighters finally get deal from city

Members of Local 22 of the International Association of Firefighters will get their increase in health-fund payments and payment to the union's retiree joint trust fund, ending drawn-out, court-ordered contract negotiations between the firefighters and Mayor Michael Nutter, the city announced Aug. 14.

The city will increase the per member, per month health fund payment from more than $1,200 per month to almost $1,620 per month.

A judge also granted lump sum payments of $6.2 million and $7.5 million. METRO

Police nab suspect in robbery of woman, 81

Police on Aug. 13 made an arrest in the July 17 robbery of an 81-year-old woman. Investigators said, following the release of surveillance video, they received tips identifying the suspect as Charles Jennings, 34.

Charles Jennings
PHILADELPHIA POLICE DEPARTMENT

Jennings allegedly first encountered the victim as she cashed a check inside United Check Cashing on South Broad Street, then followed her to the 1300 block of South Juniper Street.

There, police said he grabbed the woman, threw her to the ground and snatched a wallet that was hanging around her neck. METRO

Wounded. Four shot, two critically, in Kingsessing Tuesday

Four people were hospitalized after a Divinity Street shooting in Kingsessing Aug. 13.

Two men, 21 and 23, were being treated for multiple gunshot wounds, police said. They were in critical condition the next day.

A man, 20, was in stable condition after he was also shot.

A 19-year-old man in stable condition is facing gun charges. He allegedly shot himself in his pelvic area. Police say he was not the shooter of the three others. METRO

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING AND PUBLIC COMMENT PERIOD PHILADELPHIA HOUSING AUTHORITY

The Philadelphia Housing Authority (PHA) is a participant in the Moving to Work Demonstration Program (MTW). PHA was initially selected to participate in the MTW Program in 2001. In October 2008, PHA entered into an Amended and Restated Moving to Work Agreement ("MTW Agreement") with the US Department of Housing and Urban Development ("HUD"), which has subsequently been further amended.

The MTW Agreement defines the terms and conditions under which PHA is a participant in the MTW Program. The MTW Agreement requires that PHA submit an MTW Annual Plan for HUD review and approval. PHA's current MTW Annual Plan for MTW Year Thirteen (PHA Fiscal Year 2014) was approved by HUD on May 30, 2013.

PHA is seeking public review and comments on two proposed actions relative to the MTW Program:

- Amendment to the MTW Agreement – The proposed amendment to the MTW Agreement will provide PHA with additional flexibility in utilizing Replacement Housing Factor funds received by PHA from HUD.
- Amendment to the MTW Year Thirteen Annual Plan – The proposed amendment to the MTW Annual Plan will: 1) Establish that PHA may apply to convert one or more public housing sites under the Rental Assistance Demonstration Program and that PHA may utilize MTW Block Grant funds to support the conversion; and, 2) Allow PHA to establish a flexible subsidy program for newly developed or acquiredpublic housing units, subject to HUD review and approval of each transaction.

Additional information regarding the proposed amendments is available from PHA. Copies are available for public review on PHA's website at: www.pha.phila.gov under the "Latest News" section or may be picked up at the following locations:

- Housing Choice Voucher Program Office: 2850 Germantown Ave 1st & 2nd Floor
- Scattered Sites Management Offices: 3417 Spring Garden Street, 1821 Vineyard St. 3226 McMichael St., 3218 Susquehanna Avenue, 400 W. Huntingdon St.
- Public Housing Management Offices: Bartram - 5404 Gibson Drive, Wilson Park - 2500 Jackson St., Raymond Rosen – 2110 N. 23rd St., Blumberg - 2311 W. Jefferson St.

PHA residents, Housing Choice Voucher participants and the general public may attend and provide comments at the Public Hearing described below and/or submit written comments on these proposed actions any time during the comment period. The Public Hearing is scheduled for the following time and location: August 27, 2013 10 a.m. until noon, 1100 Poplar Street, Philadelphia, PA19123, Multipurpose Room.

Only comments pertaining to the proposed actions noted above are being solicited. The comment period begins on August 6, 2013 at 12 noon and ends September 5, 2013 at 12 noon. All comments must be received by the end of the comment period. Please send your writtencomments to: Philadelphia Housing Authority, Office of Policy, Research and Enterprise Planning, Attention: MTW Comment, 1606 Swain St., Philadelphia, PA 19130.

The Public Hearing is being held in an accessible location. If you require assistance, sign language interpreter or other accommodations, please call 215-684-4000. Please use the AT&T Relay Service for TTY.

Pep was sentenced for life. / EASTERN STATE PENITENTIARY

Eastern State shares legend of jailed pup

Cat murderer. The legend of Pep, Eastern State's only jailed pup, tells of loss, love and the purr-suit of justice.

Eastern State Penitentiary's most famous inmate may not be gangster Al Capone. And it may not be human.

Pep, "The Cat-Murdering Dog," was processed on Aug. 12, 1924. Legend contends then-Pennsylvania Gov. Gifford Pinchot sentenced the black Labrador retriever to life in prison without parole after it killed his wife's cherished cat.

Pep was paw-printed and given an inmate number, C-2559, which is skipped in prison intake logs and records.

Lauren Zalut, ESP tour specialist, explained that through correspondence between Pinchot and Warden John Groom, historians believe Pep did not live in a cell.

"The governor says Pep can be kept in the deputy warden's quarters, and he would have a yard and get plenty of exercise," she said. Two years after Pep's incarceration, Cornelia Bryce Pinchot issued a statement to the New York Times clearing Pep's name. The Lab acted as a mascot for the prisoners for about a decade until it was transferred to Graterford Prison, where Pep died.

Japanese House and Garden gets a full makeover

Everything zen. The Shofuso, in Fairmount Park, is back and better than ever.

Shofuso Japanese House and Garden, a 17th century traditional Japanese property snuggled in Fairmount Park, was in serious need of a makeover. The greens were overgrown, the pond was dirty and it didn't look like how original landscape designer Tansai Sano envisioned it five decades ago.

Shofuso officials are understandably excited about unveiling the work they've been doing on the gardens since last year in a special rededication ceremony.

"It turned out better than I imagined," said Kim Andrews, executive director for the Friends of the Japanese House and Garden.

The garden had been installed in 1957, with the traditional Japanese building going up a year later. When Andrews started as executive director four years ago, she knew she wanted to raise money to repair the garden.

"A garden is a living thing," she said. "You can't wipe it out and start over."

Andrews said Sano's original design principles were recaptured when planning the garden's makeover. An example of that is representing Japan's geography. The pond is the ocean, the rock islands are Japan's islands and trees represent the country's forests.

Andrews' next project for the garden is to apply the principle of a borrowed view — something in all traditional Japanese gardens. Their borrowed view will be of the bronze dome of Memorial Hall. Right now, trees block it. They will be removed.

Most of the construction was done last fall and completed this spring. Andrews had helped to raise $75,000 for the repairs, funded by The McLean Contributionship, Pennsylvania Historical and Museum Commission and William Penn Foundation.

The rededication ceremony is scheduled for 11 a.m. on Thursday, Aug. 15.

Andrews' favorite part

A new aspect of the garden is a boat landing. Steps lead down to the pond, which has 30 koi that feed at your feet.

- "A common practice for a wealthy estate owner is to launch a boat and ride around reciting haikus, enjoying the moon, signing songs, playing instruments — very typical of a 17th century garden," Andrews said.
- The path to the boat landing had been installed but never implemented.
- "We raised the landing up and carved a new path, which is so powerful and exciting because it puts you right at the pond," she said.

Egyptian clash. Over 200 killed in assaults on Morsi supporters

Egyptian security forces crushed a protest camp of thousands of supporters of the deposed president on Wednesday, Aug. 14, shooting dead scores of people in the bloodiest day in decades in the Arab world's biggest country.

The health ministry said 235 people were killed, both in Cairo and in clashes that broke out elsewhere in the country. Deposed president Mohamed Morsi's Muslim Brotherhood said the death toll was far higher in what it described as a "massacre."

While dead bodies wrapped in carpets were carried to a makeshift morgue near the Rabaa al-Adawiya mosque, the army-backed rulers declared a one-month state of emergency, restoring to the military the unfettered power it wielded for decades before a pro-democracy uprising in 2011.

Thousands of Morsi's supporters had been camped at two major sites in Cairo since before he was toppled on July 3 and had vowed not to leave the streets until he was returned to power.

Violence spread beyond Cairo, with Morsi supporters and security forces clashing in the cities of Alexandria, Minya, Assiut, Fayoum and Suez, as well as in Buhayra and Beni Suef provinces.

With the assault on the camps, the authorities have ended the six-week standoff with a show of state force that defied international pleas for restraint. REUTERS

The bloodshed also effectively ends the open political role of the Brotherhood, which survived for 85 years as an underground movement before emerging from the shadows after the 2011 uprising to win every election held since.

Hope fades for 18 on Indian submarine

India's navy chief held out little hope for survivors on a submarine after some of its weapons detonated accidentally and fire swept through it.

The likely deaths and damage are the worst blow to the navy since a 1971 war with Pakistan.

Eighteen sailors were on board the 16-year-old Russian-built INS Sindhurakshak, which was docked at the main naval base in Mumbai when two blasts rocked the vessel in the middle of the night on Aug. 13.

The accident spoiled a week of modernization triumphs for the navy, including the launch of a locally built aircraft carrier aimed at giving India the edge at sea as it competes with China in the Indian Ocean.

Navy chief Admiral D.K. Joshi said divers had managed to pry open the main hatch of the diesel-powered submarine, more than 12 hours after the incident, and were trying to find their way through the vessel. REUTERS

UPS cargo plane crashes in Alabama

A large UPS cargo plane crashed and burst into flames early Wednesday, Aug. 14, on approach to the airport in Birmingham, Ala., killing the pilot and co-pilot in the latest in a series of aviation accidents in the United States this year.

"I can confirm they were killed in the crash," Birmingham Mayor William Bell said of the pilot and co-pilot, who were not identified immediately. He added that there were no other casualties reported.

United Parcel Service Inc. flight 1354, en route from Louisville, Ky., to Birmingham, crashed at about 5 a.m. CDT, according to the Federal Aviation Administration. The plane was identified as an Airbus A300. REUTERS

Manning tells court he's 'sorry' for secrets breach

Court. Manning was convicted of 20 charges, including espionage and theft, on July 30.

Soldier Bradley Manning on Wednesday told a military court "I'm sorry" for giving war logs and diplomatic secrets to the WikiLeaks website three years ago, the biggest breach of classified data in U.S. history.

"I'm sorry I hurt people. I'm sorry that I hurt the United States," the 25-year-old U.S. Army Pfc. told the sentencing phase of his court martial. "I'm apologizing for the unexpected results of my actions. The last three years have been a learning experience for me."

Manning faces up to 90 years in prison for providing more than 700,000 documents, battle videos and diplomatic cables to WikiLeaks.

"I understand I must pay a price for my decisions," Manning continued in his first lengthy public statement since February.

Defense lawyers making a case for a milder sentence sought to show the judge that the soldier's superiors ignored signs of mental stress, with an Army psychologist testifying that Manning felt isolated because he was wrestling with his gender identity. REUTERS

One hostage still hospitalized after deadly Louisiana bank standoff

A woman remained hospitalized on Wednesday after being held hostage and shot by a gunman in a 12-hour standoff at a rural Louisiana bank that ended when police stormed in, killing the gunman.

The other hostage shot by the gunman died following the incident, which stretched from Tuesday into early Wednesday at a bank in St. Joseph, La., a town of fewer than 1,200 people about 220 miles north of New Orleans, said State Police Sergeant Eric Cuenca.

A U.S. police SWAT team stormed Tensas State Bank shortly after midnight, killing the gunman, identified as 20-year-old Fuaed Abdo Ahmed, said State Police spokesman Albert Paxton.

The gunman had been threatening to kill one or both of his hostages, and shot them when police entered the building. Police then shot and killed him, Paxton said.

The two wounded hostages were rushed to local hospitals but one of them later died, said State Police Sergeant Eric Cuenca.

The other, who was listed in critical condition, remained hospitalized on Wednesday, said Charla Ducote, spokeswoman for Rapides Regional Medical Center in Alexandria, La. REUTERS

Legal. Pentagon unveils benefits for married same-sex couples

The Pentagon on Wednesday, Aug. 14, announced its plan to extend benefits to same-sex spouses of uniformed military personnel and civilian employees, in response to the Supreme Court ruling in June forcing the federal government to recognize same-sex marriages in states where they are legal.

The Defense Department will make spousal and family benefits available by Sept. 3 to same-sex spouses as long as a valid marriage certificate is presented, the Pentagon said in a statement.

"The Department of Defense remains committed to ensuring that all men and women who serve in the U.S. military, and their families, are treated fairly and equally as the law directs," it said.

In a landmark ruling on June 26, the U.S. Supreme Court struck down part of the 1996 national Defense of Marriage Act, which defined marriage as between one man and one woman and denied benefits to same-sex married couples. REUTERS

Jesse Jackson Jr. sentenced to 30-month prison term

Lavish spending. He pleaded guilty in February to misusing $750,000 in campaign funds on luxuries.

Former Illinois congressman Jesse Jackson Jr., once one of the most promising black politicians in the United States, was sentenced on Wednesday, Aug. 14, to 2 1/2 years in prison for misuse of campaign funds.

Jackson, a former Democratic representative and the son of civil rights leader the Rev. Jesse Jackson Sr., apologized before U.S. District Judge Amy Berman Jackson sentenced him.

"I misled the American people," Jackson said, wiping away tears. "I also want to apologize to my dad and my mother."

His wife, Sandi, a former Chicago City Council member, was sentenced to one year for falsifying tax returns that failed to report the campaign money as income. The couple has two children.

Quoted

"I take responsibility for my actions, and I'm very sorry for what I have done." Jackson

The judge ordered Jackson Jr. to report to prison on or after Nov. 1 and for Sandi Jackson to report to prison 30 days after he is released to reduce the impact on the children.

"I stand before you today asking for mercy," Sandi Jackson said, adding that "my heart breaks every day with the pain it has caused my babies."

Jackson Jr. asked on Aug. 12 that the judge recommend to the Bureau of Prisons that he serve his time at a federal prison in Montgomery, Ala., because it would allow him to be nearer to his wife and children, who live in Washington, D.C. The judge said at sentencing she would make that recommendation. REUTERS

Oprah Winfrey is not a control freak

Interview. The Oscar nominee comes back to the big screen for the first time since "Beloved."

Taking direction

"What is exciting about him and why we love him is, he is a truth-seeker. He will not let any of his actors get away with a single breath that's a false moment. I can testify to that. He doesn't allow you as an actor get away with anything that's remotely fake. And if you do he'll yell, 'Fake!'"

Oprah, on director Lee Daniels

In "Lee Daniels' The Butler," Oprah Winfrey gets her first film role since 1998's "Beloved." GETTY IMAGES FOR HEARST

There was one major reason Oprah Winfrey returned to screen acting for her first prominent role since 1998's "Beloved." His name is Lee.

Winfrey worked with director/producer Lee Daniels behind the scenes of his breakout film, "Precious," which she also executive produced. She was coerced in front of the camera for his fourth effort, "Lee Daniels' The Butler," playing the wife of a man (Forest Whitaker) who works at the White House from the 1950s through the '80s.

"I wanted the opportunity to be in his hands, really," she says. She said he was relentless in pursuing her. "I was telling him, 'Lee, I got a network thing going on!' But he wouldn't listen to me. He'd been stalking me for some time."

Of course, there was also the subject. The film spans the beginning of the civil rights movement and ends with Obama's election. "I'm a historian of my own history — of African-American history. I believe that when you know who you are, you have the ability to move forward not only with your own strength, but with the strength of your entire ancestry," Winfrey says.

While specifically about black culture — and in a way that doesn't portray it through white eyes, despite a Caucasian screenwriter (Danny Strong) — it's also, she says, universal. "You see the two of us at the bus station sending our son off to college. That's how every parent, regardless of race, regardless of economic background, feels when you have to let go of your son."

There's also her character: the long-suffering wife of a workaholic, who spends her days drinking. "I thought a lot about what it meant to be a woman in the '50s and '60s. All of us got a lot of fire inside us. What is it like to have that fire but have nothing to do with it? You can't just sit around watching 'The Edge of Night' all day long, make a sandwich, have a beer, tiptoe with the next-door neighbor," Winfrey explains. "This gave me the opportunity to show the women of that era. Gloria is not just herself, but a composite of the women of the era who sacrificed themselves to become the stabilizing forces of their families."

Forest Whitaker plays The Butler and Winfrey is his (somewhat) faithful wife. /ANNE MARIE FOX

On her notoriety

"Contrary to what everyone assumes about me, I'm really not a control freak. I like to hire someone who knows what they're doing so I don't have to do it. Then they come back to me and tell me it's done. That's how I like to operate."

In terms of race relations today, Winfrey says she's the same Oprah for both white and black audiences. "I feel I have made a living being myself. I've made a career out of my own authenticity. I don't have one face I present to the white world or to the black world. I talk to my dogs the same way I'm speaking right now."

But she understands that her being able to feel that way was hard-earned by others. "I am the daughter of a maid, and my grandmother was a maid, and her mother was a maid, and her mother was a slave," she says. "I feel validated by the war that the butler and his entire generation fought in their own way — and the fact that there's another generation of freedom writers and freedom fighters that, because of evolution and growth and change, decided they weren't going to do that anymore. Both wars were necessary for their times."

'Paranoia': Dial 'M' for moronic

Just because a movie is set in the world of adults doesn't mean it's not childish. In "Paranoia," a young tech whiz (Liam Hemsworth) gets blackmailed by a cell phone CEO (Gary Oldman) into spying on another (a hairless Harrison Ford). Not since undercover agent Ryan Phillippe was able to gain the confidence of seasoned fed Chris Cooper in "Breach" has a painfully wooden actor been so mysteriously capable at expert subterfuge. Hemsworth is younger brother to "Thor"'s Chris, and he lacks his build, presence and modest chops. Dumb twists abound, but one would have to be thick, not paranoid, to not see them coming. MATT PRIGGE

Part two needs more Hit-Girl

Comics sequel. The second "Kick-Ass" fails to build on the first and wastes Jim Carrey.

Aaron Taylor-Johnson and Chloe Grace Moretz strut their stuff in "Kick-Ass 2." / DANIEL SMITH

Mark Millar's "Kick-Ass" comics are "Watchmen" where the makeshift not-so-superheroes actually get to kick ass. They have no significant neuroses. There is only a superficial deconstruction of comics. Early on in the movie sequel, the new guardian (Morris Chestnut) of pint-sized vigilante Hit-Girl (Chloe Grace Moretz) voices an understandable concern: A little girl ought not to be masquerading as a violent avenger. She should go to the school she usually skips.

Not that it ever means to meaningfully explore this idea; it's just mere meat to feed the plot. Dit-to the main thread, which follows nerve-frayed teen Kick-Ass (Aaron Taylor-Johnson) as he joins a gang of copycat would-be vigilantes. Their leader is a twist on Captain America: a demented, born-again sadist played by Jim Carrey. It's a mild spoiler to reveal that Carrey gets little to do and is given no chance to establish his presence beyond a gruff New York accent and a fake nose.

The villain this time is the son of the previous one: Christopher Mintz-Plasse's mafia scion has rechristened himself the S&M-garbed "The Motherf—er." He's out to avenge his father, killed by Kick-Ass in the first via rocket launcher. Again, this possibly trenchant storyline — the hero becoming someone else's villain — is only there to give the audience a rise. Like all the other shocking things that happen in "Kick-Ass 2" — including a couple significant deaths — it happens, it's forgotten and it's on to the next shocking twist.

Millar was recently (and justly) upbraided when he defended the repeated use of rape in his comics, saying they were just there as plot points to get readers angry at the perpetrators. This obliviousness carries through on to the films. The first was peppy enough it more or less got a pass. "Kick-Ass 2" needed to deepen the world, but it only makes it slightly grittier. It slightly atones with a Brigitte Nielsen-esque Amazon villain (Olga Kurkulina), who brings forth the only set piece worth remembering in six months.

'Butler' serves up odd casting

Historical saga. "Lee Daniels' The Butler" embraces some complexity — and some casting silliness.

Hey, it's Robin Williams as Eisenhower (with Forest Whitaker) in "Lee Daniels' The Butler." / ANNE MARIE FOX

Review

'Lee Daniels' The Butler'

Director: Lee Daniels

Stars: Forest Whitaker, Oprah Winfrey

Rating: PG-13

A bizarre copyright lawsuit has forced the makers of "The Butler" to put director Lee Daniels' name in the title. The irony is that it's the least "Lee Daniels" movie of the four he's directed. Plowing through the career of Cecil (Forest Whitaker), an African-American man who served as White House butler from Eisenhower (Robin Williams) to Reagan (Alan Rickman), this film is not as crazy as past Daniels movies (certain casting choices aside).

Despite being a look at civil rights and race relations written by a white guy ("Game Change"'s Danny Strong), this isn't a history lesson made to comfort white liberals. It doesn't even have a soothing, ready-made message. It's a dialectic, exploring two warring approaches to race relations.

In one corner is Whitaker's Cecil. He has decided the way to change things is quietly and subversively from within. In the other corner is Louis (David Oyelowo), Cecil's son, who comes of age during the era of sit-ins. He believes in activism (if not the violent kind). Father and son clash mightily over their contradictory tactics to achieve the same goal. This is in no way subtle, but the key is that the film doesn't pick a side.

Also importantly, this is still at least somewhat a Lee Daniels picture, which is a good thing. Daniels is a refreshingly sloppy filmmaker, whose "prestige" picture ("Precious") is frothing mad in look and feel. Here he's restrained, particularly compared to the absurdly lurid "The Paperboy" — but not that restrained. Only Daniels would think to cast John Cusack as Nixon (or "Hanoi" Jane Fonda as Nancy Reagan), though he makes himself known in more productive ways, chiefly in the forcefulness of the protest set pieces. The more eccentric side of Daniels can be found in any scene where Oprah Winfrey, as Cecil's long-suffering wife, gets drunk. Overall, Daniels is the perfect person to loosen up a script that can be as stiff as it is smart.

Why must we be two teenagers not in love?

Indie flick. "The Spectacular Now" depicts a young romance that might not work out.

Miles Teller and Shailene Woodley play lovebirds (perhaps) in "The Spectacular Now." / WILFORD HAREWOOD

The basic setup of "The Spectacular Now" isn't far off from "She's All That": Popular high schooler Sutter (Miles Teller) finds himself wooing a nerd, Aimee (Shailene Wooley), who turns out to be cooler/hotter than he at first imagined. The key difference is that Sutter isn't an Abercrombie rent-a-hunk in the manner of Freddie Prinze Jr. He's a self-destructive alkie, and it's never clear whether he and Aimee should even be together.

His macking on Aimee is mostly a ruse to win back his ex (Brie Larson). Aimee, who's never been kissed, remains powerfully oblivious to Sutter's real motives — in part because Sutter himself keeps forgetting about said motives, too. The most thrilling aspect is wondering whether he's falling for her for real or whether he's playing a long con.

Even if she may prove beneficial to him, he may be terrible for her. The film has a problem with indie cliches, but like "(500) Days of Summer" (from the same screenwriters), it's smarter than it lets on, especially with a perfectly judged final moment.

Send in the creepy 'Killer Klowns'

Repertory. The makers of a low-rent horror-comedy classic talk about avoiding CGI.

Twenty-five years ago, the planet was invaded by "Killer Klowns from Outer Space," whose villains were armed with cotton candy guns, man-eating popcorn, vicious balloon-animal guard dogs and an interstellar big top. The film was created by the Chiodo Brothers, effects artists who specialize in stop-motion animation, puppetry and animatronics, and whose Bronx accents are still strong after 30 years in Hollywood. The trio — Charles, Ed and Stephen — will appear at a screening Aug. 17 to end the summer-long Awesome Fest.

"Clowns where they should be are scary," says Charles Chiodo.

"Killer Klowns" is a loving parody of the 1950s and '60s horror and sci-fi films that the Chiodos grew up on. "We didn't know they were bad films," Charles says. "We were 11 or 12 years old and saw 'The Blob' and 'Dinosaurus!,' and they nurtured this love of monsters in us."

That love has translated into a career creating monsters and other practical effects. They've crafted Claymation segments for "The Simpsons" and the Rankin/Bass homage in "Elf," and they've designed the critters for "Critters" and Large Marge in "Pee-Wee's Big Adventure," as well as the mouse dioramas in "Dinner for Schmucks."

"We grew up with Godzilla and Rodan and Mighty Joe Young and King Kong," says Charles. "And then we found out from 'Famous Monsters of Filmland' magazine that there were people who actually did this as their job. So we started doing our own crude recreations in our basement."

CGI initially dealt a blow to the brothers' more archaic craft, but they've managed to combine digital effects with their traditional approach to create a hybrid appealing to artists who were raised loving the same films. "Filmmakers like Jon Favreau and Tim Burton like practical things on set," says Ed Chiodo, "so it's come around to where our practical art is back in vogue."

On 'Team America'

One of the strangest examples of the combination of high and low tech is the Chiodos' work on Trey Parker and Matt Stone's marionette satire "Team America: World Police." As Charles recalls, "We actually did an extensive test reel that had the puppets kicking and throwing lateral punches and doing dive rolls, reenactments of every action scene that Steven Seagal and Captain Kirk did. Matt and Trey saw it and said it was really cool, but they just wanted the puppets to look silly and slap around."

Walking Papers plan on sticking around a while

Debut. Though the name of Duff McKagan's new band may suggest impermanence, he says this is the most accessible group he's ever played in.

Walking Papers issued their debut last week. / LOUD N PROUD RECORDS

When it comes to music, Seattle is the kind of city where everyone knows everyone and, at some point, everyone plays with everyone else. Take Walking Papers, a year-old heavy rock outfit whose self-titled debut album came out last week. The band includes bassist Duff McKagan (Guns N' Roses, Velvet Revolver), drummer Barrett Martin (Screaming Trees, Mad Season), and — a little less famously — vocalist and guitarist Jeff Angell and keyboardist Benjamin Anderson, both of the band Missionary Position. But, occasionally, local bigwigs like Alice in Chains's Jerry Cantrell and Pearl Jam's Mike McCready (the latter also plays on the album) jump onstage with them.

"It's always gone on," McKagan says of Seattle's band-hopping stew. "I grew up playing in bands here and came back in '93. There's always been this brother and sisterhood thing of sharing gear ... and sharing ideas."

Walking Papers started last year when Angell and Martin began jamming on the sultry whiskey-soaked blues rock songs that make up the album. Through his longtime friendship with both, McKagan came on board, and then Anderson.

"This band should be on the radio. It's the most commercial, accessible band I've ever been in," McKagan says. "We're definitely going to do another record."

Grab your banjo: It's Folk Fest time

Sleepy Man.

Three kids from New Jersey are taking over bluegrass music.

Catch the trio at the Folk Festival this weekend. / SLEEPY MAN BANJO BOYS

If you go

52nd annual Philadelphia Folk Festival

Aug. 15 to Aug. 18
Old Pool Farm, 1323 Salford Station Road, Schwenksville
610-287-7818, Pricing varies
www.pfs.org/folk-festival

The Sleepy Man Banjo Boys are one of the hottest acts in bluegrass music, but they don't play shows that often.

After all, there's homework and bedtime to worry about.

"We're still kids, obviously," says Tommy Mizzone, 16, one of the trio's members along with two of his brothers. "As we get older, we'll add more dates."

Until then, appearances are rare, so catch them on the main stage Saturday at the Philadelphia Folk Festival. "We're really excited — it should be an awesome place to play," Tommy says.

The boys got into bluegrass by watching YouTube videos of the greats at their Lebanon Township, N.J., home. They posted their own video on YouTube, which a producer for the "Late Show with David Letterman" spotted after it went viral. They appeared on the show in 2011, delivering a stellar rendition of Lester Flatt and Earl Scruggs' classic "Flint Hill Special."

"I'm from New Jersey and my wife is from New Jersey and we knew nothing about bluegrass music," says dad Tom Mizzone. "We had to figure out how to find a banjo teacher in New Jersey."

Tommy plays the acoustic guitar; Robbie, 14, plays the fiddle and Jonny, 11, is on the banjo. They get their name from Jonny's playing: He leans back when pickin' and it sort of looks like he's sleeping.

They've released two albums so far and a third is in the works. And yep, there are more Mizzones — four more. "We have two more brothers and two more sisters," Tommy says. "They'll have to start a new band."

Last call for Black Landlord

Hip-hop. See the band at MilkBoy before they call it quits.

Maxx Stoyanoff-Williams, center, may evict himself from Black Landlord after 2013. See the group at MilkBoy's second-anniversary celebration on Aug. 15. Visit milkboyphilly.com for more info. / TONY WOOD

If you've never seen a Black Landlord show, you're missing out on a uniquely Philly experience: a raucous, yet somehow uber-polished brew of hip-hop, punk and soul. And apparently the clock is ticking. Frontman Maxx Stoyanoff-Williams reports that the band may call it quits before the year is out.

Maxx, are you still there?
Yeah, man. Just getting off the train, and people are like, "Who's this dude with the joke-ass backpack talking on the phone like somebody wants to interview him?"

What kept Black Landlord together over the years?
The fact that we don't care if we make it. When I was in the Goats, [an early '90s rap-rock act based in Philly] I could tour for six months of the year, lose my apartment, get another one, lose my girlfriend, get another one. But people have babies and mortgages now. It took me a long time to realize the benefits of that.

Why did the Goats have such a short shelf life?
Nobody knew what they were doing on either end. We thought we were going to be famous. We were stupid. And on top of that, you had Columbia refusing to go anywhere other than black radio. At the time they didn't know how to deal with a [rap-punk mix].

Have you noticed a progression in Philly hip-hop over the years?
Ah. No. I've seen a few people blow up — talking about things that are definitely representative of Philly: drugs, guns, and sh— like that. That's fair. It's a part of life, like it or not. But I've never seen any of those people come back and help the scene rise to the level that this town deserves. And it's been that way since nineteen eighty-f— ing eight.

Theater in the X is bringing 'charged theater' to West Philly

Open air. The new production company is staging plays outdoors.

Walter DeShields, LaNeshe Miller-White and Carlo Campbell are co-founders of Theater in the X. / PROVIDED

When LaNeshe Miller-White met her friend Carlo Campbell in his favorite skateboarding spot, she knew right away where she would stage her first theater production: Malcolm X Park. The 6-acre square between 51st and 52nd streets is a longtime cultural hub of West Philly.

"It had such beautiful murals and nature and people and energy, and I just immediately visualized really charged theater happening there," says White, who has worked for a number of small theater companies in Philadelphia since graduating from Temple University in 2008.

White's vision is to bring challenging African-American voices into the open air of X Park. With funding from a modest grant from Leeway Foundation, she selected two pieces that fit that bill to a T: Nilaja Sun's "No Child…," about the playwright's experience as a teaching artist in some of the most violent and underfunded schools in New York, and "Black Mass," a rarely performed 1968 script by the legendary African-American poet Amiri Baraka.

"We've been very clear with the actors from the beginning: This is going to be an expect-the-unexpected type of performance," says White. "We're coming into their space, so we can't expect the whole park to shut down and pay attention to just us."

4 Middle Earth is next for Meyer

Like the rest of the us — except those who decided to get Edward Cullen tattoos — author Stephenie Meyer is "over" "Twilight."

"I get further away every day," she tells Variety. "I am so over it. For me, it's not a happy place to be." Meyer did concede, at least, that she could see herself giving some sort of update, but it might not be what fans are hoping for. "What I would probably do is three paragraphs on my blog saying which of the characters died," she says. "I'm interested in spending time in other worlds, like Middle Earth."

Paula Abdul's facial expression, circa 2005, illustrates how we currently feel about Simon Cowell. / GETTY

1 Simon Cowell cheated on Carmen Electra

Who cheats on the vision that is Carmen Electra? None other than Simon Cowell. (I picked this classic photo, left, of Paula Abdul to illustrate my feelings on this entire sordid affair.)

According to E! News, Electra caught him in flagrante delicto with the married Lauren Silverman, who is reportedly pregnant with his baby.

"Carmen was at Simon's house in L.A. when she literally busted him with Lauren," a source says. "Simon called her a friend, but there was nothing platonic about what was going on, if you know what I mean."

We know exactly what you mean. And it's so juicy! According to the source, Electra quickly called off her relations with Cowell.

"There was no way she was going to stick around and be a third wheel," the source says, probably because, you know, she's Carmen Electra.

3 Was 'Flowers in the Attic' real?

The good thing about your teenage fascination with "Flowers in the Attic" is that once you get a little older, you can laugh about it. The whole story's so outlandish that nothing like that could ever actually happen. Right?

Not so fast. In an interview with The Toast, Ann Patty, who was V.C. Andrews' editor, says the story behind "Flowers in the Attic" might actually have some truth to it. "'Flowers in the Attic' was based on a story [V.C. Andrews] heard when she was in the hospital for a spinal operation," she said. "Well, someone told it to her, yes. Some doctor there. So I'd guess that some aspects of it were true — at least the aspect of kids being hidden away. Whether the twins were real, the sex, the time frame, probably not. I think it was just the concept of kids hidden in the attic so the mother could inherit a fortune."

Oh, OK. So just the torturous imprisonment part is true. Cool. That makes us all feel so much better.

Garner on paparazzi and her children

JENNIFER GARNER
WIREIMAGE

Jennifer Garner is joining Halle Berry in pushing for a California bill that would make it illegal for paparazzi to photograph their children. "I chose a public life. My three children are private citizens," Garner said while testifying before the California State Assembly Committee on Public Safety in support of the proposed anti-paparazzi bill, according to E! News. "I love my kids. They're beautiful and sweet and innocent, and I don't want a gang of shouting, arguing, law-breaking photographers who camp out everywhere we are all day, every day, to continue traumatizing my kids."

Rumor has it that Skyler (with mom Rachel Zoe) is getting a baby brother.
WIREIMAGE

2 A boy for Rachel Zoe?

It looks like baby number two for Rachel Zoe is going to be another boy, joining brother Skyler, 2.

"She has been telling everyone that she's having a boy — all her clients and friends know," the source tells Life & Style about the pregnant stylist. "She was joking that she really wanted a girl to take to couture shows and turn her into a fashionista!"

For some reason, I think both boys will be nothing but fierce.

How to beat the back-to-school blues

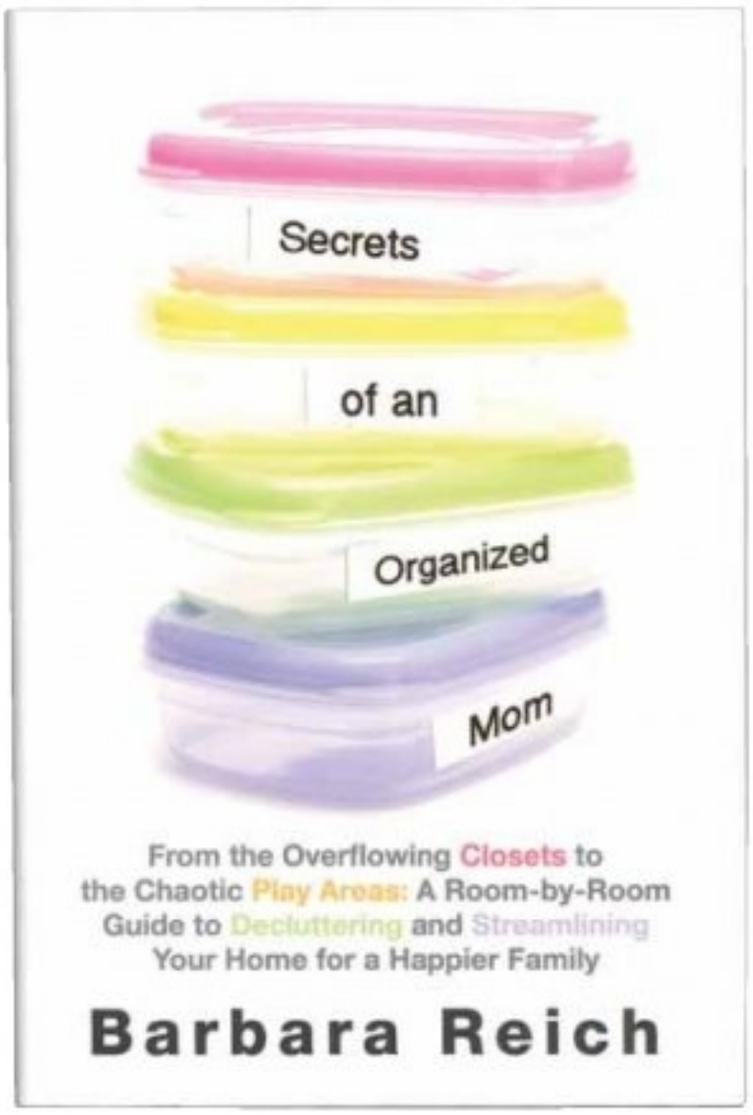
Pro tips. That early alarm clock will start ringing soon, so we asked an expert how parents can prepare.



Secrets
of an Organized
Mom
From the Overflowing Closets to the Chaotic Play Areas: A Room-by-Room Guide to Decluttering and Streamlining Your Home for a Happier Family
Barbara Reich

Let the whining begin. The end of the summer can be difficult for parents whose kids dread returning to the classroom. Between shopping for school supplies, getting in an earlier bedtime routine and waking up on time for the bus, it can leave parents as well as kids feeling tired way before the bell rings on the first day of school.

There are easy ways to cut down on the struggles of back-to-school week, according to Barbara Reich, a professional organizer, author and mother of two. Her book, "Secrets of an Organized Mom," offers tips and personal parenting anecdotes to help break down the organization process in easy-to-manage steps.

What's the hardest routine for kids to get back into?

In the week before, you should try and re-establish a bedtime and a wake-up time so that kids aren't waking up two hours earlier than usual. The best thing to do with homework is to make it part of the routine, done in the same place at the same time every night after school. Even if they finish their homework, they can read a book or do something that's educational. Once they know that those are the rules, they'll fight you less. I think if kids have a string of successes, if they study and do well, then they are more apt to want to study and do well the next time.

For kids who have had behavioral issues in the past, how do you keep them from making the same mistakes during a new school year?

Each year is a new year. The way your child responds to a teacher means there may be better chemistry some years than others. Every year is a fresh slate, and your child is one year older and one year more mature. If you feel like there have been behavioral issues, you sit your child down and say you're going to check in with their teacher. I'm not opposed to a little creative bribery.

Getting a routine in place before school starts can make that early alarm clock easier to hear, says author Barbara Reich. / PROVIDED

More and more kids are using cell phones and social media at a younger age, causing problems in the classroom. Are there dos and don'ts for working parents who want to stay in touch with their kids while at school?

My [kids'] school does allow cell phones during the day, and I wish it didn't. I don't feel like there's any reason why they need to get in touch with me during the day. Kids have cell phones at a younger and younger age, and it's a blessing and a curse for parents. I think the consensus among parents is we all hate social media, but we like being able to get in touch with our kids.

Do you have advice for first-time stay-at-home parents who might feel some withdrawal when their kids ultimately begin their education?

I remember when my kids first went to preschool for three hours a day, and I felt sick inside. It was like somebody had cut out a piece of me, because I used to be with them all day. As a parent, you kind of reinvent yourself many times. When you have that last child in school for a portion of the day, it's a good time to brush up on your professional skills if you want to go back to work.

Serving up brown bag fun

Making the lunch hour fun for children can be a tall order for parents in the rush to get kids ready for the return to school. Here are options that are kid-tested and lunch box approved:

- Parents can go traditional or put a Mexican accent on lunchtime with wraps and quesadillas made with La Tortilla Factory's Mini SoftWraps. There's no need for the humdrum crust-free sandwich — melted cheese or hummus with veggies are easy options for a fresh take. Recipes can be found at: Latortillafactory.com.

- Skipping the pricey store-bought energy bars and making your own can be a great way for parents to save some cash while fueling the family. Energy bars with wheat germ are packed with the fiber and nutrients to take on any soccer game (or afternoon of errands for mom and dad). Recipes can be found at: Mywheatgerm.com.

- A sweet treat can brighten the back-to-school doldrums. With a new line of dairy-free, gluten-free pudding in a tube, Sunrise Super Squeezies are fortified with Omega-3 to make sure kids can see the blackboard even from the back of the class.

Health. Keep an eye on the weight of your child's backpack

Too much weight on a growing spine is a bad idea, says Dr. John Blanco. / COMSTOCK IMAGES

Be careful about what you pack into your little tykes' backpacks. Heavy backpacks can have serious medical implications, according to experts.

Thousands of students arrive in local emergency rooms each year with backpack-related injuries.

Dr. John Blanco, associate professor of orthopedic surgery at Weill Cornell Medical College, spoke to us about keeping students' spines safe.

Many families might not think of what can happen when students' backpacks are overloaded, he says.

But most of those kids come in complaining of back pain, and families often are worried about scoliosis, he says, which is not caused by weight like backpacks. But back pain can be, he said.

John Blanco / PROVIDED

Many in the danger zone are middle- and high-school students, he says.

"They're carrying around a 30-pound backpack all day long," he says. He continues, "There are common-sense things that a lot of families don't realize they can do to make a backpack more manageable for their child."

ALISON BOWEN

Tips

Watching your child's back

1. Know the suggested weights. The American Academy of Pediatrics keeps suggestions of how families should choose backpacks and how their children should wear them. "A lot of families just don't have any idea of how a child should wear a backpack," Blanco says. He suggests no more than 10 to 20 percent of a student's body weight as a measure.

2. Straps matter. "Look for a backpack that has very wide, padded shoulder straps," he says. "They should always have two shoulder straps, and tell your child to put their arms through both shoulder straps. You see a lot of kids that fling the backpack only on one shoulder. By having it on both shoulders, it distributes the weight better." And that dorky waist strap? Use it. "By cinching the waist strip, it brings the backpack firmly against your body."

3. Check out the actual backpack. "Some backpacks weigh a ton with nothing even in them," he notes. "Find a light backpack that fits the bill." Other alternatives? A rolling backpack, if your child doesn't mind being one of the only students with one. Many students don't want them, Blanco says, but, using them "means that they're not putting any weight on their back at all."

Fragrance. 3 scents to keep summer going a littler bit longer

Products

1 Chanel's Les Exclusifs Eau de Cologne blends sharp citrus fruits and neroli for a fresh, elegant scent that includes just the right amount of floral notes without being overpowering. This is what we imagine chic Parisian ladies shopping Saint-Honoré must smell like.

2 It wasn't the typical beach vacay Fresh co-founder Lev Glazman was inspired by for the brand's new fragrance. He created a scent reminiscent of the lake he and wife/co-founder Alina Roytberg vacation at in Vermont. Their new blend, Fresh Life includes notes of earth (bergamot, vanilla grass and cypress), air (grapefruit, lilac leaves and magnolia), sun (amber, orange and tonka flowers) and water (sweet cucumber and moss).Peace and quiet, not included.

3 If it's not the sunny-yellow, polka-dot-and-bee-adorned bottle of the new Marc Jacobs Honey that puts a smile on your face, it's the happy scent. Pear and mandarin mingle with orange blossom, peach, vanilla and,of course, honey, to create a bright floral scent that pairs perfectly well will popsicles and roof-top parties. TINA CHADHA

The beauty of sleep

There's a reason why Sleeping Beauty had that name. / GETTY IMAGES, CREATAS RF

Science. A new study proves a lack of sleep increases signs of aging.

Wonder why you're seeing lines on your face at 27? Or why those sunspots take forever to disappear? It might be time to skip a party or two and get a full night's sleep.

The saying "get your beauty rest" has never rang truer than now, thanks to a new study commissioned by Estee Lauder. The beauty giant teamed up with scientists at University Hospitals (UH) Case Medical Center to examine the skin conditions of 60 poor sleepers. The findings: For the first time ever a study reveals that a lack of sleep causes skin to age faster.

"Our study is the first to conclusively demonstrate that inadequate sleep is correlated with reduced skin health. Sleep deprived women show signs of premature skin aging and a decrease in their skin's ability to recover after sun exposure," says Dr. Elma Baron, Director of the Skin Study Center at UH Case Medical Center.

With this newfound knowledge, Estee Lauder went back into the lab. This month they launched their new Advanced Night Repair Synchronized Recovery Complex II, a potent serum that boosts Catabolysis, the skin's natural nighttime cellular repair process, or the reason you wake up with fresh and healthy-looking skin in the mornings.

Make it part of your nightly ritual — in addition to eight hours of beauty sleep, of course.

WHEN OPPOSITES ATTRACT: THE RULES OF HATE-SEX

Funky Brown Chick

TWANNA A. HINES, M.S.

AWARD-WINNING EDUCATOR AND SEX COLUMNIST. FOLLOW HER ON TWITTER @ FUNKYBROWNCHICK

You've been there. You want to have sex with someone, but it's surprising because they actually repulse you. Perhaps you're lusting for your significant other's most annoying friend or your horrible boss. Or maybe you're having steamy fantasies about that annoying co-worker with the grating voice. Wouldn't it be great if we could control our sexual attraction? We are 100 percent in command and responsible for our actions, but desire often catches us unaware.

Hate-sex is sexual activity between two or more people who don't like each other. The arousal involves someone you purportedly find revolting — it is about repression.

"Only five nights ago he had contemplated smashing her skull in with a cobblestone — but that was of no importance. He thought of her naked, youthful body, as he had seen it in his dream."

That excerpt is from George Orwell's book "1984," written in the 1940s. Yep, the joys of hate-sex are timeless! But the rules for hate-sex aren't exactly obvious. Take a look ...

It's OK if there's a love/hate relationship in your bed. / GETTY IMAGES

Dos and don'ts

- DO have at it. Sleep with them if you both determine that it's the right path and doing so causes no harm to yourselves or others. It may be the worst sex of your life. Or it could release a flood of passion like never before!
- DON'T confuse sex and rape. If you genuinely hate someone and view sex as a means to harm or punish them without consent, that's criminal.
- DO dig deeper into the unresolved conflict. What is it about the object of your desire that makes you hate them? Think about the qualities triggering your loathing and examine the emotions pegged to that hatred. For example, perhaps their vulgarity pisses you off because you secretly wish to live as explicitly as they do. Psychological repression is a slippery little sucker. Uncover what lies beneath it.
- DO realize sexual behavior encompasses a wide swath of activity, including masturbation. If acting on your carnal impulses would be socially messy or inappropriate, just fantasize and jam out by yourself.
- DO understand hate-sex is not the same as hating sex. The physical, emotional and psychological benefits of getting it on are valid. If you're not having a good time with it, try something or someone else.

Cocktail

The Envy

To the two people not going down the shore this weekend: Enjoy the uncrowded bars and restaurants in Philly. The rest of us can head to Atlantic City's Buddakan, in the Pier Shops at Caesars, to sip the refreshing Envy cocktail.

Ingredients:
1 ½ ounce Stoli Blueberry
¾ ounce lime juice
½ ounce simple syrup
½ ounce Sprite
Muddled Thai basil, green apple and blueberries

From the Garden State to your plate

Caesars' Atlantic City properties are getting serious about eating local.

Mia at Caesars serves up Italian fare. We recommend the cookie plate for dessert. / PROVIDED

You may not be able to order your favorite dish at one of the restaurants at Caesars, Bally's, Showboat or Harrah's this weekend — it depends what was caught that day. The four casino-hotels, part of Caesars Entertainment Corp., are focusing on fresh, locally produced fare for "Garden State to Plate," their Jersey-centric take on farm-to-table.

For executive chef Keith Mitchell, who oversees the restaurants at Caesars and Bally's, it's nothing new. "I've been doing locally sourced my whole career," he told Metro last weekend, when we stopped by Atlantic Grill at Caesars to take in the panoramic views of the boards and beach and sample the chef's fava bean sweet pea tortellini and house-made mozzarella with warmed sungold tomatoes.

The ingredients we gobbled up came from the 40-acre Masters Organic Farm in nearby Galloway. Masters provides produce exclusively for the Caesars properties, which means Mitchell gets to put in requests for what's planted.

He has a similar relationship with fish and game suppliers.

"[The fishermen] will go out for clams, and I'll get a message at 5 a.m. saying they also caught swordfish. And then we'll design the menu around that," he said. With New York, Pennsylvania and Delaware offering gambling, Atlantic City has been making a big push to bring in money from restaurants and retail, not just slots and tables — and it seems to be working, Mitchell said. The majority of diners at Atlantic Grill and next-door Nero's Tuscan Steakhouse are not gamers. People are now coming just to eat, and Mitchell wants to make sure they eat well.

The city and the casinos used to just "throw money at everything," he said. "But people are paying more attention to what they eat and where it comes from. You have to be smart. You have to be thoughtful about what you're putting on the menu."

Celebrity chefs

Philly connection

Our own restaurateur extraordinaire, Stephen Starr of El Vez, Morimoto, Barclay Prime and others, is partially behind Atlantic City's transformation into a foodie town, Chef Mitchell said. When Starr brought two of his chic Philly restaurants, Continental and Buddakan, to the Pier Shops at Caesars, people started to realize there's a market for that. Of course, bringing in celebrity chefs like Bobby Flay and Jose Garces, who have restaurants in the Borgata and Revel, doesn't hurt either.

A few more "big name" celebrity chefs will debut restaurants in AC, Mitchell said — but he's "not at liberty" to give us the scoop on exactly who just yet.

Who will be crowned Geek of the Year?

Red carpet. The geek shall inherit the Earth at the annual awards ceremony.

With more than 40 nominees in 14 different categories, this year's Philadelphia Geek Awards honor a wide range of local scientists, artists, teachers and entrepreneurs — united not by any particular interest but by the intensity of their particular interests.

"The term 'geek' doesn't necessarily refer specifically to technological innovation," says Tim Quirino, co-founder of blog Geekadelphia, which presents the Geek Awards in conjunction with the Academy of Natural Sciences of Drexel University. "It's more about having a hobby or a side project that you feel really passionate about, that you care so much about that you pour yourself into it."

This year's nominees include an archeology professor working with Dogfish Head Brewery to revive ancient beer recipes; giant Pong games played on the Cira Centre; a startup teaching adolescents with autism to use digital and social media; and a visual artist inspired by hot dogs. For the first time, those nominees were discovered with the help of Philly's larger geek community, which was encouraged to submit suggestions to help out this year.

"We all have normal jobs that keep us really busy," says Geekadelphia co-founder Eric Smith. "So something incredible could slip under the radar. In the end, we received over 600 emails."

The black-tie, red-carpet awards show takes place at the Academy of Natural Sciences. The pre-show cocktail hour will feature science demonstrations and live animals. The ceremony itself will include presentations by local "celebrigeeks" like "Mystery Science Theater 3000" creator Joel Hodgson.

The most coveted award, of course, is Geek of the Year. "That's like our Best Picture," Smith says. "When you look at the nominees, they're really inspiring people that I think the community should look up to."

Justin Swain wants to feed you gumbo

Hot chef. Head to Rex 1516 to see this former competitive cyclist in action.

Justin Swain likes to teach cooking classes — but he keeps a few of his recipes secret. / REX 1516

Rex 1516 is one of those restaurants that elevates Southern food and makes comfort feel refined. Executive chef Justin Swain is a huge part of what makes this place so successful. If you can't find him in the Rex kitchen, chances are he's teaching a class, racing on two wheels, buried in a cookbook or avoiding crowds on a Monday night. The dude stays busy.

You taught your first class at COOK last month. How was it? Do you like teaching cooking techniques?
I do. Because I retain so much minute information about everything I do, it's nice to pass it on even if it's just a few tips and tricks. The environment at COOK is great. People get really excited. I try my best to translate to working in the home kitchen. Of course, some of the small things you have to keep to yourself, recipe-wise.

You do a ton of Southern cooking. How did you get into that?
When I first started cooking my first job was with Regis [Jansen, chef] at a place called 1601. He taught me a whole bunch about Southern cooking, like what makes etouffee so good, what goes into a gumbo. He passed a lot on to me. And I went through a lot of cookbooks. I have a ton of them. Chefs have a hard time moving because they own so many cookbooks.

Q&A

You've done a few collaborative and competitive cooking events, too. What draws you to these?
Before I was a chef, I was a competitive cyclist — so I'm really competitive at heart. Getting together with other chefs is always something I love doing. You can bounce things off each other. Even if it's a cuisine you're not strong in, you can get some great tips from someone who handles that kind of cooking.

There's still a little summer left. Any quintessential Philly things you do before the season's over?
I like to go to Morgan's Pier and sit around. Mondays are the best because I'm off and no one's over there so it's quiet.

Aug. 15, 6-10 p.m., Fifth and South streets, Pay as you go, 215-575-0444, www.thefoodtrust.org
We hope you packed a light lunch for work so you can leave room for the ultimate street food festival! Night Market spotlights the city's best food trucks and restaurants. Name any type of food, and we can almost guarantee it will be there. Po'boys, empanadas and koagies (a ridiculously good Korean hoagie) are just a few of the many food options that will be available at more than 80 food trucks over nine — that's right, nine! — blocks, making this the biggest Night Market to date.

Pharaoh has been the breakout star of "Saturday Night Live" since he first appeared in 2010. And with Kristen Wiig, Bill Hader and Fred Armisen making their departures, he's been getting a lot more airtime. At 25, Pharaoh is the youngest cast member, and he's making a mark with his memorable impressions of President Obama, Jay Z and Will Smith. We wouldn't be surprised if he does one of those impressions during his five-show engagement.

Calif. needs to reconsider its electric avenues

Re: 'California pushes to "bottle sunlight" in energy storage' (Metro, Aug. 13) California Gov. Jerry Brown wants to store solar and wind energy for the days when the wind does not blow and the sun does not shine. "Bottle the sunshine," he calls it. Unfortunately he does not understand basic electricity. Only alternating current can travel on high-tension lines, but only direct current can be stored in batteries, and most electronic devices require AC. Of course it is possible to convert AC to DC and DC to AC, but with each conversion there is power loss of about 30 percent.

Eating beef is just lame

Re: 'Video of "lame" cattle stirs concern over growth drugs' (Metro, Aug. 14) If you are still eating beef after reading stories like this, you deserve whatever drugs, pesticides, hormones and excrement you'll be consuming. If you're still serving your kids hamburgers after all we've learned about the beef industry, you need to stop and rethink.

Redemption song for Soul in Bowl rematch

Arena football. The American Conference champs head to Orlando with a bad taste in their mouths.

While Soul players greeted fans, took pictures and signed autographs during a send-off party at Chickie's & Pete's Aug. 14, coach Clint Dolezel took to the microphone and declared the new motto is "unfinished business."

The Soul will face the Arizona Rattlers Aug. 17 in a rematch of last year's ArenaBowl. The Soul have played the Rattlers twice this season, both resulting in losses by a combined total of 21 points.

Dolezel feels the defending champions have the Soul's number.

"They've beat us three times over the last 12 months," he said. "Until we beat them, they have our number. We know that we can beat them. We had them beat in our place [at Wells Fargo Center], and so we're not really overly concerned."

Why should they be? The Soul are two-time American Conference Champions. They boast a prolific offense and a stingy defense. Dolezel feels that his squad is the best in the AFL.

"I would say so, but we got to prove it," Dolezel said. "I'm pretty sure that Arizona would beg to differ, but since their record is better — and they beat us twice this year — we got to go and prove it."

The way quarterback Dan Raudabaugh sees it, it's just a matter of executing on both sides of the ball.

"We got different ways to execute on both sides of the ball, but we got another good defense," he said. "We pressure the quarterback a lot, we force turnovers and on offense ... I don't think we score quite as many points [as last year], but we're being efficient."

Devil of a deal

The Sixers' ownership group has agreed to purchase the New Jersey Devils and the Prudential Center. The group, headed up by Joshua Harris, will finalize the deal Aug. 15, according to CSNPhilly.com. According to the report, Sixers CEO Scott O'Neil will be named new Devils CEO. Despite the rumors, sources told CSN Philly that the ownership group has no plans to move the Sixers to New Jersey.

Hamels, Phillies playing for pride

MLB. With no playoffs in sight and the 2013 season coming to an end, it's time to look to the future.

Hamels leads the National League in losses, with 13. / GETTY IMAGES

When Ethan Martin spoke of his new surroundings in the Phillies' clubhouse, the young right-hander (with terrific stuff) pointed toward Cole Hamels.

"It's great to be here since I can learn from guys like him," Martin said.

The lesson to be learned this year from Hamels is how to deal with adversity. Early on, Hamels had trouble locating his fastball and lost some ballgames he should have won.

But Hamels has turned it around, even though his team has had trouble supporting him on the scoreboard.

"I don't worry about things I can't control," Hamels said. "I can only focus on what I can do."

Hamels has certainly matured. There was a time when he would raise his arms in disgust when an error was committed behind him. If he did that this year, he probably would have pulled a muscle by now. The Phillies have simply not come through for Hamels or anybody else.

Hamels (5-13) leads the NL (and is tied for tops in the majors) in losses, but it's not his fault. He has a 1.98 ERA in his last eight starts. It wouldn't be surprising if Hamels — 3.65 ERA right now — finished with an ERA under 3.00. That shows how bad it is for the Phillies.

"I believe the offense will get it going," Hamels said.

Perhaps it will happen in 2014. It doesn't look promising for 2013. The way the Phils are playing, it's not in the team's best interest to rush Ryan Howard back. The same could be said for Ben Revere. There's not much to play for when injuries pile up and the team is buried in the standings. Well, except one thing.

"You play for pride," Cliff Lee said. "You have to."

FANTASY

ADAM LEVITAN, LIVING THE FANTASY

METRO'S FANTASY GURU BREAKS IT ALL DOWN

NFL news

Mike Wallace got 17 snaps in the preseason opener and saw zero targets, just like in practice. Wallace and QB Ryan Tannehill have reportedly shown very little chemistry, leading to very few connections on a daily basis.

COME FLY WITH ME, LET'S FLY AWAY

The bottom of a fantasy football roster is a form of art. We mix backups, handcuffs and injured players together and hope to come out with a tasty concoction.

What should really get you salivating is your flier picks — the guys between Rounds 10 and 16 who you take a shot on and hope they crush, like a Randall Cobb or Robert Griffin III last year. If they don't pan out, we just cut bait.

Jordan Cameron appears to be the starting tight end in Cleveland. Grab him in the 13th round, if he's there. / GETTY IMAGES

Pink Floyd. There isn't a more fantasy-friendly offensive coach in the game than Bruce Arians. He doesn't throw to running backs, doesn't throw to tight ends and doesn't scheme horizontally. He wants to get the ball deep and win with chunk plays. Michael Floyd is a physical beast who will see single coverage all day while defenses focus on Larry Fitzgerald. He's the best breakout candidate.

Off the radar. If the Patriots' season started this week, they'd be starting Zach Sudfeld at the flex tight end spot and Kenbrell Thompkins at X receiver. If you haven't heard of these guys, you're not alone. They are rookies who went undrafted in April. But they're also talented pass catchers who could be playing every down with Tom Brady.

Air Jordan. Here's a list of tight ends who have had career years under Rob Chudzinski and/or Norv Turner: Antonio Gates, Kellen Winslow, Vernon Davis, Jay Novacek and Greg Olsen. Next man up on this list is Jordan Cameron, a former basketball player who is the Browns' starting tight end. He's athletic enough to really push the seam and make plays in the red zone. Cameron has TE1 appeal in the 13th round.

McInerney looks for consistency

MLS. The Union forward is trying to regain the scoring touch that transformed him into an international star.

McInerney was an All-Star.
GETTY IMAGES

In life, everyone wants a routine. They want to get into a rhythm. For athletes, like the Union's Jack McInerney, this is no different.

McInerney has 10 goals this season for the Philadelphia Union. His 10 goals rank fourth in the MLS, but recently the scoring machine has gone cold. The forward hasn't netted a goal for the Union since June 5.

"I think I just need to get back in rhythm and find what was working for me in the beginning of the year," said McInerney. "Mainly, it's just being able to find the right spots and holes in the defense. I think I'm putting a little too much pressure on myself now when I get the ball, to make the special plays happen ... but I need to let the game just come to me and not think about it as much, and I think the goals will come."

McInerney was away for half of July training with Team USA in the CONCACAF Gold Cup. He returned to the Union on July 19, but then served as a sub in the MLS All-Star Game on July 31.

"I was away from the team for quite a bit and kind of got away from my routine," said McInerney. "Lately, I feel like I'm starting to find that rhythm and routine again, and as a team we're coming along and playing very well right now."

While McInerney is finding his own rhythm, the Union have looked in sync for the past month. They sit in third place in the Eastern Conference with 37 points. They're just two points behind first-place Sporting Kansas City.

"This year we've been a really good road team, but we just have to really stay focused at home and get these games," he said. "I know there's still going to be times where we slip up and make mistakes a little bit, but if we can make up for them and not miss a beat, then I think we can finish great."

The Union head to New York on Saturday to face the rival Red Bulls at 8 p.m. The game will be aired on the NBC Sports Network.

Team USA bests Bosnia

Jozy Altidore netted a hat trick Wednesday as the U.S. men's team defeated Bosnia-Herzegovina, 4-3.

The win extended the Americans' win streak to a world-best 12 games, and gave them two victories over top-15 teams.

Big 5 goes national

Temple and La Salle are headed for national TV. The Big 5 schools will tip off in a game at the Palestra Jan. 18 on ESPN. The network will broadcast a pregame show.

La Salle will be home, with Temple hosting in 2014-15. The schools shared last year's Big 5 title.

Pat down: Brady injures knee in training camp

NFL. The Patriots quarterback leaves practice early after taking a hit to his surgically repaired left knee.

Brady was being pressured by Tampa Bay defensive end Adrian Clayborn during 11-on-11 drills when his knee collided with offensive tackle Nate Solder. The Patriots and Buccaneers had been taking part in a joint practice.

Brady was immediately checked out by trainers before coming back and running a few more plays. Eventually, the Pats quarterback limped to the sideline under his own power.

"I don't believe it's serious, but I don't know," Patriots president Jonathan Kraft told 98.5 in Boston.

According to ESPN, an MRI came back negative and Brady is listed day-to-day. New England coach Bill Belichick didn't address reporters after practice.

It should be noted that Brady tore his left ACL back in Week 1 of the 2008 season. He missed all of that season after getting surgery.

Brady hurt his knee.

HAVE YOU HAD
EMPHYSEMA FLARE-UPS?
Taking A Statin Pill May Help.

The Temple Lung Center is conducting a clinical trial to find out if a statin pill, used to reduce cholesterol and prevent heart disease, can also help reduce the number and severity of emphysema flare-ups.

TO BE A PART OF THIS TRIAL YOU MUST:
- Have emphysema
- Be 40 to 80 years of age
- Be a current or ex-smoker
- Not be taking a statin for high cholesterol or heart disease

You may receive a statin pill or a placebo (an inactive substance) and medical tests, including breathing and blood tests, at no cost during the trial.

The trial consists of 4 to 6 visits per year to the research facility, Temple Lung Center, for up to 2 years. You may receive $100 for the first visit and $50 for each following visit.

For more information, call 215-707-4260 or e-mail breathe@temple.edu
